

Traditional Knowledge of Women: A Beacon Wisdom for Climate Change Adaptation

Lun YIN

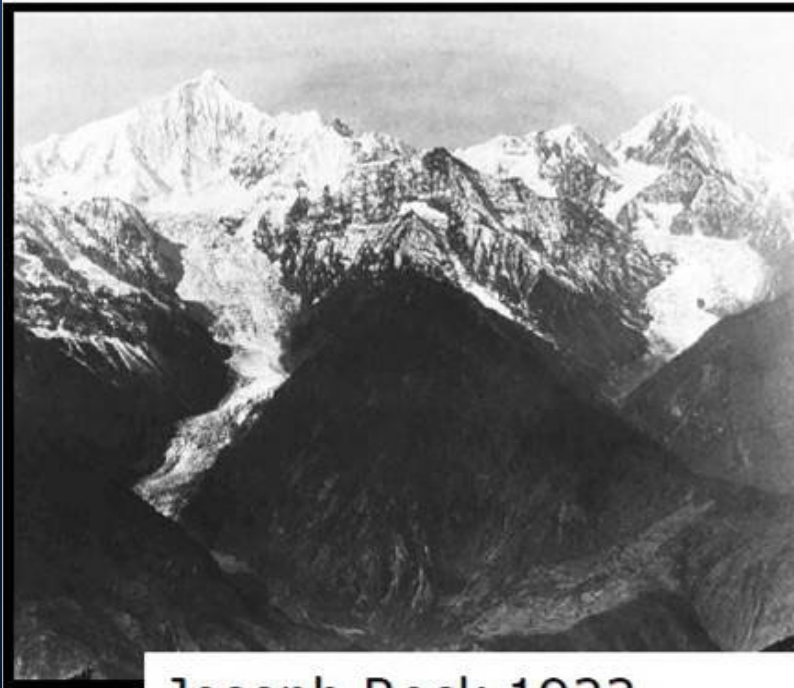

The Eastern Himalayan region is a vulnerable area significantly affected by climate change.

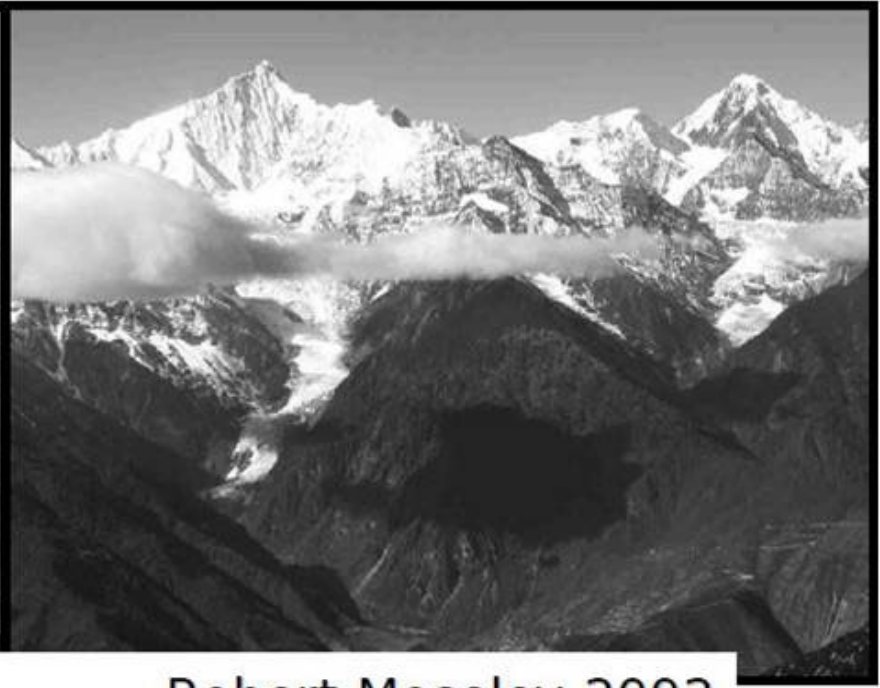

Agro-pastoralism is the traditional livelihoods of the Tibetan people living here, women are the main labor force

“the glaciers and snow are getting less and less, just like the clothes worn by the mountains are getting less and less.”

Joseph Rock 1923

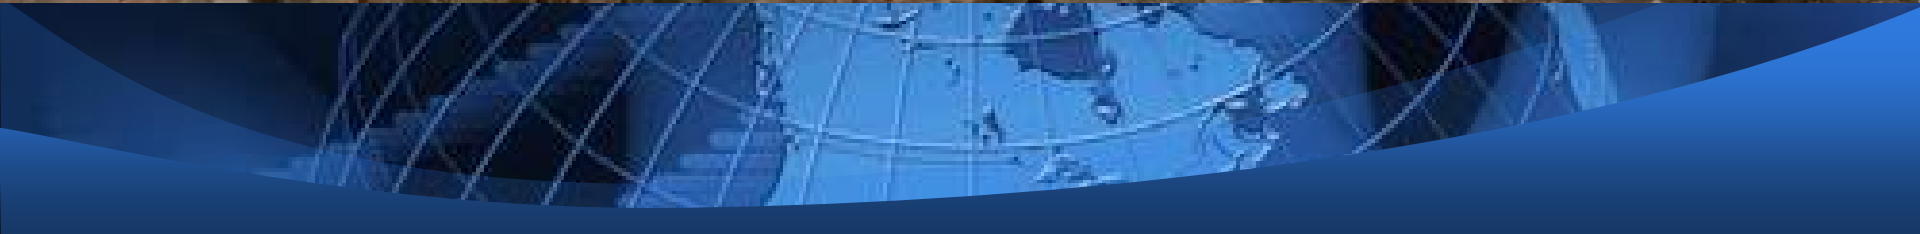

Robert Moseley 2003

Gender-based Climate Action is a capacity building process for local women, learning by doing.

Traditional knowledge of Tibetan Women had been classified into five categories

Traditional “Sisterhood” of Tibetan women

From Mentsunmo Sacred Goddess Mountain to Mentsunmo Climate Action SDG Laboratory

Using a variety of local tree species for afforestation on Goddess Mountain

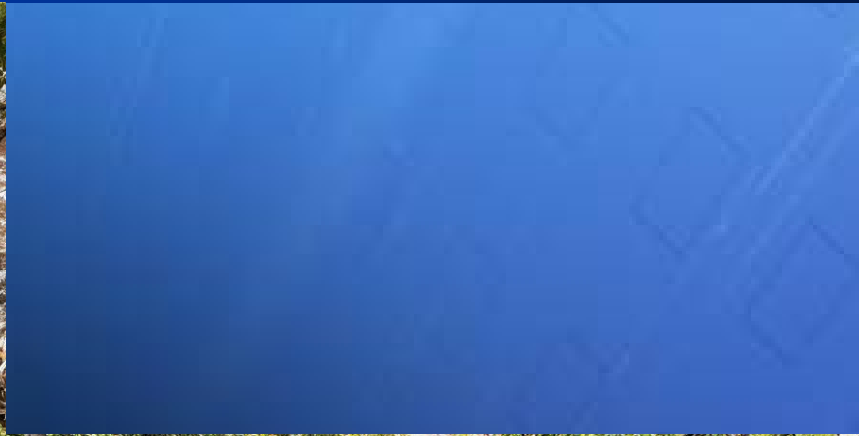

Protecting the trees in the Goddess forest

From the Goddess Forest to the carbon neutral forest

Maintaining the ecosystem of the Goddess River

Small climate change fund and loans

Plans for farming projects

vegetable greenhouses, solar energy, and irrigation systems

At The Paris Peace Forum,

The Secretary General of the United Nations Mr. Antonio Guterres expressed interest in the project

We are delighted to welcome your project team in a few days in Paris, for the second edition of the Paris Peace Forum. The « Soft Opening » of the Forum will take place on Monday 11 November from 17:00 to 21:00, in presence of Antonio Guterres, Secretary General of the United Nations. All participants will gather within the Space for Solutions of the Forum, where the stands of all showcased projects will be displayed.

We wanted to inform you that the Secretary General of the UN, Antonio Guterres, has expressed a particular interest in your project, and might thus stop by your stand during his visit of the Space for Solutions of the Forum. We kindly ask that you keep this information confidential.

Thanking you in advance for offering him a warm welcome and look forward to meeting you in a few days,

Best regards,

Fanny

Fanny PETIT

Responsable des projets | Projects Manager

Forum de Paris sur la Paix | Paris Peace Forum

Traditional Knowledge of Women: A Beacon Wisdom for Climate Change Adaptation!

Lun YIN

